PART ONE

Playing the Game

Everything the players need at the table, from the Entities and the dice to the raid, Suspicion, the chase and how the year went.

CHAPTER 1

The Game

YOU PLAY CLASSIC MONSTERS WHO SHARE A CASTLE IN the woods. Once a year, when the town dresses up for its Lantern Night festival, you go down to steal what the castle needs. Get the shopping list home before dawn, and if the job goes wrong, outrun the mob before it corners you with pitchforks.

What a Raid Is

Each raid is on a new town and stands alone. Nothing from earlier raids carries over unless your group uses the optional campaign rules at the end of Chapter 7. A raid runs 1–2 hours, so an evening often fits two. In the story, every raid is the year's first stock-up.

The Storyteller decides whether the town is Easy, Standard or Hard, using the table in Chapter 8. That choice sets the shopping list's size, the Suspicion Limit and a few other numbers. It isn't an obstacle's Difficulty, the number you roll against.

Who Plays

3–5 players each play one of the eight Entities. One more person is the Storyteller, who runs the town, its villagers and the mob. The tone is horror-comedy for about 12 and up, with real stakes and dark jokes but nothing gory.

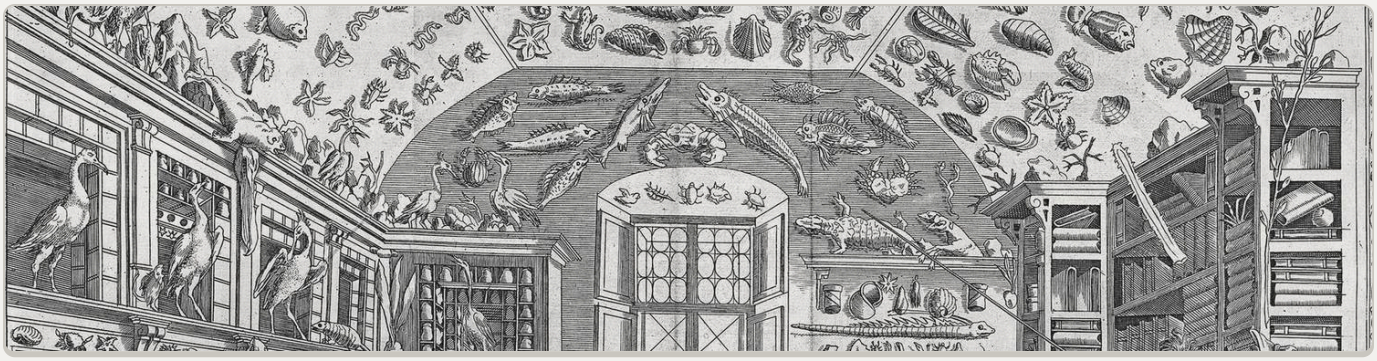

What You Need

- For each player, one each of d4, d6, d8, d10 and d12 (the trait dice), plus a second d6 for the Mask and a second d10 for the Monster, each in a different colour from the trait dice. A 0 on a d10 counts as 10.
- For the Storyteller, a d20, a d10 and two d6. When the book calls for a d3, roll a d6, halve it and round up.
- Copies of the Entity Sheet and At the Table for each player, the town's page and The Eight (Chapter 2), and something to track Suspicion, Turns and the Lead.
- A town to raid, either ready-made from Chapter 9 or one the Storyteller draws on a map or rolls on Chapter 8's random tables.

THE RAID AT A GLANCE

- The Storyteller rolls the shopping list. One or two items are essentials and the rest are extras.
- Visit the town's locations before dawn (12 Turns), getting past their obstacles and taking the loot.
- Choose on most rolls whether to hide behind your Mask or let the Monster out.
- Watch Suspicion, because when it reaches the Limit the whole town hunts you.
- Get out of town with the goods, or else run for it. Whatever happens, don't get forked.

CHAPTER 2

The Entities

Eight Entities share the castle: Dracula, Frankenstein's Creature, the Mummy, the Werewolf, the Invisible Man, a Ghost, a Witch, and Jekyll & Hyde. Each player picks one. No two players in a party play the same Entity: if two want the same one, they roll off (again on a tie), the high d6 keeps it, and the other picks again.

Five Traits

Every Entity has five traits:

TRAIT	FOR
Brawn	Force, lifting, breaking, fighting
Nimble	Climbing, running, slipping free
Sly	Sneaking, hiding, stealing
Charm	Talking, bluffing, passing as human
Wits	Noticing, knowing, figuring things out

Each trait is rated as a die. Every Entity has one each of d12, d10, d8, d6 and d4, placed differently, so what one Entity does with a d12, another fumbles with a d4. Jekyll & Hyde has two forms on one sheet, each with its own arrangement of the same five dice (he changes form with the Draught).

The Mask and the Monster

Every roll adds a second die to the trait die. You choose which, the Mask d6, passing as human, or the Monster d10, letting the monster out. The Monster is stronger, but if its number is higher than your trait die's, the Monster shows and Suspicion, the town's shared alarm, rises by 2. On a tie, or with the Mask, nothing shows. Every Entity has the same pair.

What Every Entity Has

- A signature ability, and a second ability chosen as its Gift.
- A Weakness, which the mob brings to a chase to make your trait die one size smaller.
- A Tell, the way it gives itself away. When it goes off, Suspicion rises by 1.

Three Picks

Each Entity is premade, with three picks. Every pick has a marked default, so a new player can skip the choices. To pick a Gift or a Perk at random, roll a d6: 1–2 the first option, 3–4 the second, 5–6 the third. For Castle Duty, roll on its table below.

- Gift: one of three versions of the Entity's second ability.
- Perk: one of three edges, always on and free; each bends one rule in one situation.
- Castle Duty: one of six household jobs, the same six for every Entity, each with an edge where one kind of list item is found (below). No two Entities in a party take the same one. The Storyteller reads out the shopping list and the furniture before anyone picks, and the picks are made again each raid.

Charges

Every Entity has 3 charges. One charge pays for one use of an ability. Every raid starts with all 3 (they refill at the castle, once a year); unspent ones are lost.

ABILITIES NEVER PASS AUTOMATICALLY

A signature or a Gift costs a charge each time you use it, and every one of them still needs a roll. The box before the entries says what each kind does.

Castle Duties

Every Entity keeps one job at the castle and shops for one kind of item. At a location whose list item is your Duty's kind, your trait die is one size bigger on your own rolls there, the furniture's obstacle included, but never in a chase. That is the roll's one raise, so no ability can raise it further. Each Entity's entry gives its default Duty. If two players want the same Duty, they roll off (again on a tie), the high d6 keeps it, and the other picks again. A Duty whose kind isn't on the list gives no edge that raid, so pick one that is where you can. Rolling a Duty at random, roll again on one that's taken or not on the list, while a Duty that's both free and on the list remains.

D6	DUTY	SHOPS FOR	WHERE IN TOWN	AT THE CASTLE
1	Cook	food and drink	the baker, the butcher, the tavern cellar	Keeps the castle fed and knows every kitchen door
2	Gardener	plants and seeds	the market garden, the florist, the seed merchant	Knows what grows where, and what's poisonous
3	Librarian	books and paper	the bookseller, the printer, the schoolhouse	Reads the town's notices and signs
4	Butler	silver, china and linen	the silversmith, the china shop, the laundry	Knows how fine houses run, and where they keep the good spoons
5	Handyman	tools and hardware	the smithy, the ironmonger, the carpenter	Knows how locks and hinges work
6	Tailor	cloth and costumes	the draper, the tailor, the hatter	Keeps everyone's disguises in one piece

The Eight

The entries use words that later chapters explain. Rolls, Success, Cost, Trouble and Difficulty are in Chapter 3. Obstacles, watched and group, Turns, carrying and the way out are in Chapter 4. Suspicion, the loud way, Tells and the Limit are in Chapter 5. Chases, the ground, the Lead, the lock-up and the final flight are in Chapter 6. A new player can take the defaults and come back to all this later.

USING AN ENTRY

- Spend before you roll. A signature or a Gift can go on any roll in the same place, be it a location, the way out or the lock-up. The roll can be yours or a friend's, and helping costs your charge but not your action. It can't help a friend in a local chase, though, and an approach of your own, or the Draught, works only on your own roll. In a chase, any signature or Gift, approaches and the Draught included, may be spent as a raise instead, whatever its usual conditions: on your own roll in a local chase, on any runner's in the final flight.
- One raise per roll, from any source, your Castle Duty's included. A d12 can't go higher, and a raise cancels a step down.
- Loud stays loud. A trait the obstacle lists as its loud way is loud however you came to roll it.
- Perks aren't abilities. They cost nothing, and one, the Ghost's Spectral, skips a roll.

FOUR KINDS OF ABILITY

Every signature and Gift but Jekyll's Draught does one of these four things. The entries name the kind, then add what is the ability's own, such as its trait and where it works.

- Your trait die one size bigger. This is a raise, for this roll only. A d8 becomes a d10, and a d12 can't go higher.
- Roll another trait. Roll the ability's trait instead of the one the obstacle calls for, or in a chase instead of the ground's.
- The Monster die without risking Suspicion. Take the Monster d10 as your second die. If it shows, that adds nothing, but anything else on the roll still raises Suspicion as usual.
- An approach of your own. At an obstacle that doesn't list the ability's trait, roll that trait at a Difficulty 2 lower. If the obstacle is watched, Trouble still gets you caught. Only you get past, though the way out still takes everyone and a rescue still frees every captive. Never in a chase.

When the Monster shows on one of Jekyll's rolls, that roll stands and Hyde takes over straight after it, free, until a draught changes him back. He does even when an ability, his own or a friend's, meant the Monster raised no Suspicion.

Gift: The Other Self PICK ONE · 1 CHARGE A USE

Perk PICK ONE · ALWAYS ON

- Steady Nerves: On Jekyll's rolls, Hyde takes over only if the Monster beats your trait die by 2 or more. Beating it by 1 still shows: Suspicion +2.
- Brute Strength: As Hyde, carrying doesn't make your Nimble smaller.

Castle Duty (default): Librarian, who shops for books and paper.

Weakness: A Familiar Face. Soon (from round 3): in any chase, from its third round to its end, your trait die is one size smaller. Someone in the mob recognises the good doctor.

Tell: The Wrong Hand. One hand a gentleman's, the other hairy and knotted.

CHAPTER 3

Rolling the Dice

You roll only to get past an obstacle (the way out and the lock-up are obstacles too) and in each round of a chase. Every roll is your trait die plus your Mask or Monster die, added together.

The Roll

1. The obstacle sets the trait. Each obstacle lists the traits that work, usually one or two. When it lists two, one is usually marked as the loud way, and rolling that one raises Suspicion by 1, whatever the result. To roll any other trait you need an ability (below). In a chase, the ground sets the trait instead.
2. Choose the second die, either the Mask d6 or the Monster d10. When you're carrying furniture, or in the final flight, it must be the Monster.
3. Roll both, add them, and compare the total with the obstacle's Difficulty, which is 6, 8, 10 or 12.

Results

- Success: the total is equal to the Difficulty or more. You do it.
- Cost: 1–2 short. You do it, but the Storyteller picks one of these costs.
  - Suspicion +1.
  - Drop an item. The Storyteller picks one item of loot you carry, but never the loot this roll wins, and never furniture.
  - Lose a Turn, which means skipping your next action. If the hunt starts first, it lapses.
  - Your next roll's trait die is one size smaller, whatever that roll is, a chase's included.

  The Storyteller never picks a cost that costs nothing right then. For example, Suspicion +1 costs nothing on a roll that already raises Suspicion, or in a group check that already does (not counting an overdraw, which goes on top), because one roll raises it only once.
- Trouble: 3 or more short. It doesn't happen, and Suspicion rises by 1. If the obstacle is watched, you are also caught and must run for it in a local chase, as Chapter 6 describes.
- Critical: a Success where both dice show the same number. Outside a chase, the roller gets back one charge it has spent this raid (never more than it started with; an overdraw isn't a charge). In a chase it counts as two Successes.

In a chase, a result moves the Lead instead. A Cost costs nothing there, and Trouble starts no new chase. A local chase still raises Suspicion, once, when it ends (Chapter 6).

The Monster Shows

If you rolled the Monster die and its number is higher than your trait die's, the Monster shows: Suspicion +2, whatever the result. A tie, or the Mask, shows nothing. The monster did the work, so of course it showed.

Abilities

Using an ability costs one charge. At zero charges you can still use one by overdrawing: it costs Suspicion +2 instead of a charge, on top of anything else the roll raises. In a local chase you can overdraw only once. In the final flight it costs a step down instead, so your trait die is one size smaller from your next roll to the end of the flight (not on the roll you overdraw on), on top of any Weakness. Chapter 6 says when you may do this.

Every ability but the Draught does one of these four things.

- Make your trait die one size bigger, a raise (a d8 becomes a d10; a d12 can't go higher).
- Use the ability's trait instead of the one the obstacle calls for (in a chase, instead of the ground's).
- Roll the Monster die without risking Suspicion. If the Monster shows, that adds no Suspicion, but everything else on the roll still counts, including Trouble, the loud way, a Cost picked as Suspicion and an overdraw.
- Open an approach of your own. At an obstacle that doesn't list the ability's trait, roll that trait at a Difficulty 2 lower (a 10 becomes an 8). Never in a chase.
  - Any obstacle will do, not only a location's first one (its way in).
  - The obstacle is still watched or not, as marked, so Trouble at a watched one still gets you caught.
  - Only you get past it. It isn't beaten for the others, who must beat it themselves.
  - Two places work as usual. At the way out, your Success or Cost gets everyone out. At the lock-up, a rescuer's Success or Cost frees every captive, and a captive may open one to slip free.

Spend abilities before you roll.

- You can spend one on any Entity's roll at the same place as you (a location, the way out or the lock-up), even if you haven't got past the obstacles it has. In a local chase, only on your own roll.
- Helping costs the charge but doesn't take your action.
- The roller always rolls its own dice, so Brute Force spent on a friend's roll means the friend rolls its own Brawn.
- You can open an approach, or drink the Draught, only on your own roll (but see chases, next).
- In a chase, any ability, approaches and the Draught included, may be spent as a raise instead of doing what it usually does, whatever its usual conditions: on your own roll in a local chase, on any runner's roll in the final flight.

Several abilities may go on one roll, but only one of them may change the trait, and the roll takes at most one raise from any source, Castle Duty included. A step down is anything that makes your trait die one size smaller, which means a Cost, your Weakness, an overdraw in the final flight or carrying furniture (your Nimble only). Any number may apply. Net raises against steps down first. A d4 stepped down and raised stays a d4, and a d12 raised and stepped down stays a d12. Then apply the limits, so nothing makes a die smaller than a d4, or bigger than a d12.

CHAPTER 4

The Raid

The raid happens on the town's yearly festival, Lantern Night. Everyone dresses up as a monster, so the real ones can almost pass in the crowd until dawn ends the raid.

The Shopping List

Before the raid, the Storyteller rolls the shopping list on Chapter 8's tables; Chapter 9's towns come with their own. It has 4 items on Easy, 5 on Standard and Hard. One or two are essentials (one on Easy, one or two on Standard, two on Hard), and the rest are extras. To win, bring home every essential, with at most one extra missing. Each item is one of six kinds (the "Shops for" column of Chapter 2's Castle Duties table), and its kind decides whose Castle Duty gives an edge at its location.

The Town

Every town is built from the same parts.

- An obstacle lists the traits that work (one may be the loud way) and has a Difficulty. It may be marked watched (Trouble there gets you caught) and group (below).
- A location has 1–3 obstacles, which you get past in order, guarding one list item (sometimes two, when two items share a place). Whoever gets past the last obstacle has the item in hand, with no extra action. If several get past at once, they choose who holds it.
- A location's first obstacle comes in two versions, its two ways in (say, front door or back window). The party picks one the first time anyone rolls at one of them, even with an approach of its own and even if the roll fails, and everyone uses only that one there for the rest of the raid. (A Ghost's Spectral pass, with no roll, doesn't pick it, and a Ghost past one way in stays past even if the party then picks the other.)
- A location is watched if any of its obstacles is, either way in included (the furniture's doesn't count). It gets a Tell check. Being caught depends only on the obstacle you roll.
- The way out of town (below) is always watched.
- The lock-up, where captives are held, is always watched too.

A place is any location, the way out or the lock-up. An item is a thing on the shopping list, and the items an Entity carries are its loot. The furniture or decor is a piece (below).

Turns

The night lasts 12 Turns. The party starts at the edge of town, at the way out, and entering the town needs no roll. Each Turn, every Entity takes one action:

- Roll at the next obstacle where it is.
- Move to any other place. A move takes one Turn, unless a map says it takes two. Carrying furniture adds one Turn to any move.
- Pick up dropped items (below).
- Wait.

Entities act one at a time, in any order, and each result counts at once. Finish one Entity's action, chase and all, before the next begins; if the hunt starts mid-Turn, anyone who hasn't acted yet doesn't. An Entity who moves has arrived, and an obstacle one Entity beats is already beaten for the next to act. Several may try the same obstacle in one Turn, and each try risks Trouble, though the way out can be rolled only once a Turn. The party may split up, and it costs no extra Tells, only earlier ones (Chapter 5), though the Witch's Familiar's Warning covers only those who arrive with her. On Standard and Hard it usually should, since there's rarely time to visit every place together. Dawn comes when the 12th Turn ends, and anyone still in town runs for it in the final flight.

Once anyone beats an obstacle (a Success or a Cost), it stays beaten for the whole party, with two exceptions.

- At a group obstacle (a crowd, say, or a guard who checks everyone), each Entity who wants past rolls for itself.
- If someone got past an obstacle with its own approach, the others must still beat it.

If two or more Entities roll the same group obstacle in one Turn, they make one group check instead of acting one at a time. All declare their dice and abilities, then all roll at once, and each gets past on its own result. Suspicion rises only once for the whole check, by the biggest trigger among the rolls.

Furniture

One piece of furniture or decor stands at one of the list's locations, behind one extra obstacle of its own, after the location's others. That obstacle's Difficulty is 2 higher than it would otherwise be (at most 12). Once that location's loot has been taken, whoever is past all its other obstacles may try for the piece. Bringing it home turns a Win into a Grand Year.

Carrying

- A Bulky piece needs one carrier and a Huge piece two; Chapter 8's furniture table says which is which. A Huge piece's two carriers both count as carrying it and move together. If one is caught, it still counts as carrying in its chase, and the piece waits with the other carrier; if either is captured, the town takes it. A Huge piece can't go through a way in or way out that a map marks small.
- While you carry a piece, you can't use the Mask, and your Nimble is one size smaller. Carrying loot doesn't do this.
- When you carry a piece, a move takes your action in one more Turn than usual: two Turns in a row for an ordinary move. Until the last, you're between places, at neither one. You arrive when you act in the last.
- Taking the piece, once you're past its obstacle, is free, then or on a later Turn. Taking it back up after it's been set down is an action.
- From the Turn it's first taken, it raises Suspicion by 1 at the end of each Turn, even while set down. That stops when it's carried out of town, lost (the town takes it back when its carrier is captured) or abandoned.
- You may abandon it at any time you could drop it, free. It stays where it is and makes no more noise, and nobody can take it again.

Loot. An Entity can carry any amount of loot, and can hand it to another Entity in the same place at any time, free. It can't while it's caught, until its chase ends, and it can never hand loot to a captive (though a captive who kept its loot can hand it out).

Dropping and Picking Up

- You may drop your own loot, or a piece you carry, at any time without using your action. Once you're caught, though, you can't until your chase ends.
- It stays at the place you're in. Between places, it stays at the place you left, and setting down a piece there puts you back at that place too.
- Anyone at that place may pick up any number of dropped items, as their action for a Turn.

Getting Out

The way out is one watched obstacle: Sly or Nimble, or Brawn the loud way, at Difficulty 6 on Easy, 8 on Standard and 10 on Hard. The party leaves together. One Entity rolls for everyone, but only when every Entity who isn't captured is at the way out. A Success or a Cost gets everyone out, and a Cost here costs nothing. On Trouble, Suspicion rises and the roller is caught. The way out can be rolled once a Turn, so try again next Turn. Anyone still captured is left behind.

CHAPTER 5

Suspicion

The whole town shares one Suspicion track, from 0 up to a Limit: 9 on Easy, 10 on Standard and 13 on Hard. A small town notices sooner, so Easy's is the lowest. With five players, it's 1 lower on Easy and Standard: 8 and 9.

What Raises It

TRIGGER	SUSPICION	FROM A ROLL?
Trouble	+1	Yes
The Monster shows	+2	Yes
Taking the loud way	+1	Yes
A Cost chosen as Suspicion	+1	Yes
Overdraw (on top of the rest)	+2	Yes
A Tell goes off	+1	No
Furniture taken, each Turn (even set down)	+1	No

THE LOUD WAY

When an obstacle lists a loud way and you take it, Suspicion rises by 1, whatever the result, even if an ability made you roll that trait (say, Brute Force where the loud way is Brawn). A trait the obstacle doesn't list is never loud.

ONE ROLL, ONE RISE

One roll raises Suspicion only once, by its biggest trigger. The loud way and the Monster showing on one roll make +2 between them, not +3. The one exception is an overdraw, which always adds its +2 on top. A local chase rises only once too, when it ends (Chapter 6). Good results never lower Suspicion.

Tells

The first time anyone reaches a watched location, the Storyteller makes a Tell check: roll a d6, and on 4–6 a Tell goes off. Each place is checked once a raid, for everyone.

- The lock-up counts, but not a captive's arrival.
- The way out counts once anyone comes back to it.
- The furniture's obstacle doesn't make a location watched.

The check is made once everyone moving there this Turn has arrived. If it goes off, pick one of the arrivals at random with a d6 (two: 1–3 or 4–6; three: 1–2, 3–4 or 5–6; more: number them and reroll unused numbers) and describe its Tell. The only effect is Suspicion +1. Ask first who else is coming this Turn, since a later arrival isn't checked.

Getting Caught

Trouble at a watched obstacle gets the Entity caught and starts a local chase, which Chapter 6 explains. Only the obstacle you rolled counts. Trouble at an unwatched one starts no chase, even in a watched location, though it still raises Suspicion. Everyone with Trouble in one group check is caught and flees together.

At the Limit

When Suspicion reaches the Limit, or dawn comes with anyone still in town, the hunt is on: every Entity who isn't captured flees together in the final flight. A roll's result comes first, so if the roll that reaches the Limit gets the party out, it's out, and captives it frees join the flight. Anyone that roll gets caught has no local chase; it flees with the others. If a local chase's rise reaches it, an escaped runner joins the flight; anyone cornered was captured first. Then Suspicion stops, and any extra points are lost.

CHAPTER 6

Chases and Getting Forked

There are two kinds of chase. Caught during the raid, you run from a crowd in a local chase. When Suspicion reaches the Limit, or dawn comes with anyone still in town, the whole town turns out with pitchforks for the final flight.

The Lead

A chase is played in rounds, on a Lead track. The Lead starts low, and you try to raise it to the escape number before the mob brings it to 0. The starting Lead, the escape number and the mob's Difficulty depend on the kind of chase (below). Each round:

1. The ground. The Storyteller rolls a d6 on the chase table below. The row names two traits that work this round, for everyone in the chase.
2. Choose. Each Entity in the chase picks one of those two traits, and its second die. In a local chase that is the Mask or the Monster (no Mask while carrying furniture). In the final flight it is the Monster only.
3. Abilities. Spend them before rolling, as usual. An ability that changes the trait rolls its trait instead of the ground's. Any ability, approaches and the Draught included, may instead be spent as a raise. Opening an approach never works in a chase, and Castle Duty gives no raise.
4. Roll against the mob's Difficulty.
5. Move the Lead. Fleeing alone, your result moves it.
   - Success: Lead +1 (a Critical: +2).
   - Cost: no change.
   - Trouble: Lead –1.

   Fleeing with others, it moves once for the round, by the majority rule (below).

Reach the escape number and you're clear. Reach 0 and you're cornered, which means captured in a local chase or forked in the final flight.

A chase roll moves the Lead instead of getting you past an obstacle. A Cost brings no Storyteller's Cost, and Trouble starts no new chase.

One chase, one rise. A local chase raises Suspicion once, when it ends, by the biggest trigger among all its rolls, however many rounds it took and whoever rolled them: Trouble +1, the Monster showing +2. Each overdraw in the chase adds its +2 on top. Until the chase ends, Suspicion stays where it was. In the final flight it has already stopped.

Your Weakness

Once the mob brings your Weakness, your trait die is one size smaller to the end of the chase. Each Weakness says when the mob brings it.

- Always: from the first round of any chase (Dracula, a Ghost).
- Soon: from the third round of any chase (everyone else).

Count rounds from 1 in each chase. The final flight is a new chase, even for an Entity who joins it from a local chase.

The Local Chase

When Trouble at a watched obstacle gets you caught, you run for it. If that Trouble brings the Limit, there's no local chase: you flee with everyone else in the final flight.

- Lead: starts at 1. You escape at 4. A chase lasts 6 rounds at most: if it's still running after round 6, a Lead of 2 or more escapes, and less is cornered.
- The mob's Difficulty: 8 plus half the Suspicion when the chase starts (after the rise from the roll that got you caught), rounded down, at most 11. It stays the same for the whole chase. (Suspicion 5: 8 + 2 = 10.)

- Abilities work on your own roll only. Nobody else can spend a charge on your roll in a local chase, not even a fellow runner. You can overdraw only once in a local chase.
- You can't drop, abandon or hand over what you carry until the chase ends.
- The whole chase, however many rounds it takes, happens inside the Turn it started. Escape, and you're back where you were caught, with that Turn used up.
- Entities caught together in the same group check flee together on one shared Lead, moved by the majority rule (below), and are captured together if cornered.
- Giving up. At the start of any round, once the ground is read and before anyone rolls, a runner may give up and be captured, with no roll. Anyone caught with it carries on without it. A chase given up before anyone has rolled raises nothing.
- Fleeing alone (for Night Runner and Fear the Curse) means alone when the chase starts, so a fellow runner giving up later doesn't change it.
- If the chase's rise brings Suspicion to the Limit, the hunt is on as soon as the chase ends. A runner who escaped joins the final flight; anyone cornered, or who gave up, was captured first and stays behind.

Captured

Cornered in a local chase, you are captured, and the town takes back what you were carrying, furniture included. It's gone for the night, and nobody can take it again. You are held at the town's lock-up. Like a location, it is a place of its own, one move from anywhere unless the map says otherwise, and always watched.

While held, you can't pick up or be handed anything. You can still spend charges on any roll at the lock-up (your own, a rescuer's or another captive's).

	RESCUE	SLIPPING FREE
Who rolls	Anyone who isn't held, at the lock-up (getting there is a move)	The captive, as its action, once per Turn, from the Turn after its capture
Traits	Sly, or Brawn the loud way	Sly or Nimble, or Brawn the loud way
Difficulty	The lock-up's: 10	The lock-up's: 10
Success	Every captive there is free	You're free
Cost	Every captive there is free (the Storyteller picks a Cost as usual)	Nothing happens
Trouble	Suspicion +1, and the rescuer is caught: a local chase	Suspicion +1, but no chase
Then	The freed act again next Turn, from the lock-up	You act again next Turn, from the lock-up

The lock-up is always watched, so abilities that need a watched obstacle (Dracula's Mesmerise) work on both. A rescue frees only the captives held at that moment, so anyone captured later needs a new rescue.

Left behind. Anyone still held when the others leave town, by the way out or by escaping the final flight, is left behind (see How the Year Went, Chapter 7).

Everyone held. If every Entity in the party is held at once, the night ends there and then. The town has the lot of you, and the year is Forked.

The Final Flight

At the Limit, or at dawn with anyone still in town, every Entity who isn't captured flees together, wherever they are.

- Lead: starts at 2. The party escapes at 5 (6 on Hard).
- The mob's Difficulty: 10 on Easy, 11 on Standard and Hard, however many flee.
- Your second die is the Monster, because the Mask is off.
- Abilities can go on anyone's roll, since you all flee together. Any ability, approaches and the Draught included, may also be spent as a raise (the trait die one size bigger) on any runner's roll, whatever its usual conditions, instead of doing what it usually does. Still one raise per roll.
- The Lead moves by the majority rule (below).
- Anything you drop in the flight is left in town.

THE MAJORITY RULE

Whenever several Entities share a chase (the final flight, or a local chase begun by one group check), everyone in it rolls each round, in any order the party likes. Then count the Successes (a Critical counts as two) and the Trouble. Costs count for neither.

- Successes ahead by 1: Lead +1. Ahead by 2 or more: Lead +2.
- Trouble ahead by 1: Lead –1. Ahead by 2 or more: Lead –2.
- Level: the Lead stays.

For example, a Success, a Critical, a Cost and a Trouble make 3 Successes to 1 Trouble: Lead +2.

Escape, and everyone in the flight is home with what they carry; anyone still in the lock-up is left behind. If you're cornered, the party is forked, and the year's result is Forked.

Once the Hunt Is On

From the moment the hunt is on, when the final flight begins:

- Suspicion stops. Nothing raises it any more.
- The Mask is off. Everyone rolls the Monster die.
- Overdraw costs a step down instead of Suspicion. From your own next roll to the end of the flight, your trait die is one size smaller, on top of any Weakness (if you overdraw on your own roll, that roll doesn't take it). If you overdraw on the roll of someone who rolls before you in a round, your own roll that round already takes it.
- You can overdraw once per flight, even while your Weakness is in play.

None of this applies in a local chase, where an overdraw costs Suspicion +2 as usual, on top of the chase's one rise.

The Chase Table

D6	THE GROUND	TRAITS THAT WORK
1	The crowded square. Lose yourself in the crowd, or bluff your way through.	Sly, Charm
2	Back alleys. Duck, dodge, double back.	Nimble, Sly
3	The market stalls. Overturn a cart, vault a stall.	Brawn, Nimble
4	Over the rooftops. Climb, jump, find a way down.	Nimble, Wits
5	The festival parade. Join in: you're in costume, after all.	Charm, Sly
6	A dead end. Break through, or think fast.	Brawn, Wits

Every row offers a trait other than Nimble.

CHAPTER 7

How the Year Went

When the party is out of town (or the mob has had the last word), look at what came home.

An item, or the piece, is home if an Entity who got out of town, by the way out or by escaping the final flight, carries it.

RESULT	WHEN
Grand Year	A Win, and the piece of furniture or decor came home too
Win	Every essential home, and no more than one extra missing
Partial	Not a Win, but at least half the list home: 2 of 4 items, 3 of 5. A missing essential makes it a Partial at best
Bust	Less than half the list home: 0–1 of 4, 0–2 of 5
Forked	Cornered in the final flight, or every Entity held at once: the raid is lost, and nothing comes home

Left Behind

Work out the result first. Then drop it one step for each Entity left behind in the lock-up. One step turns a Grand Year into a Win, a Win into a Partial and a Partial into a Bust. Two left behind drop it two steps. It never drops below Bust, and a Forked year stays Forked.

The Epilogue

The result decides the epilogue (how the castle's year goes) and nothing else. Nothing carries over to the next raid unless you play the optional campaign rules below. Read the result's line from the first table below. Then, unless the result is Forked, read a line from the second table for each kind of item that didn't come home. Each kind gets one line, however many items of that kind are missing.

RESULT	THE YEAR
Grand Year	A year of plenty. The new piece goes in the great hall, and everyone pretends it was always there.
Win	Full larders, warm fires. The castle creaks happily through another year.
Partial	The castle gets by, just. Someone has to sleep in the draughty tower.
Bust	A long, thin year, and a lot of arguing about whose fault it was.
Forked	The town tells the story for years. Next Lantern Night, the bells ring a little louder.

MISSING	WHAT THE CASTLE WENT WITHOUT
Food and drink	Turnip soup every night until spring.
Plants and seeds	Nothing grows but nettles, and the nettles win.
Books and paper	Nobody knows what the town is saying, or what day it is.
Silver, china and linen	Dinner is served on old coffin lids.
Tools and hardware	Every door in the castle creaks, sticks or falls off.
Cloth and costumes	Next year's disguises are held together with string and hope.

OPTIONAL: CAMPAIGN PLAY

For groups who play several raids with the same castle:

- Each piece of furniture or decor brought home, whatever the year's result, becomes a castle upgrade.
- At the start of each later raid, the players give each upgrade to one Entity in the party. Each upgrade gives that Entity one extra charge that raid, as part of its starting number: with one upgrade it starts with 4, and a Critical can refill it up to 4. One Entity may take more than one upgrade.
- The castle holds three upgrades at most. A fourth piece replaces one of them; the players choose which (all upgrades work the same).
- Nothing else carries over. An Entity forked or left behind is back at the castle for the next raid. Each raid, the players pick Castle Duty, Gift and Perk again after hearing the new list, but the Entities themselves never change.

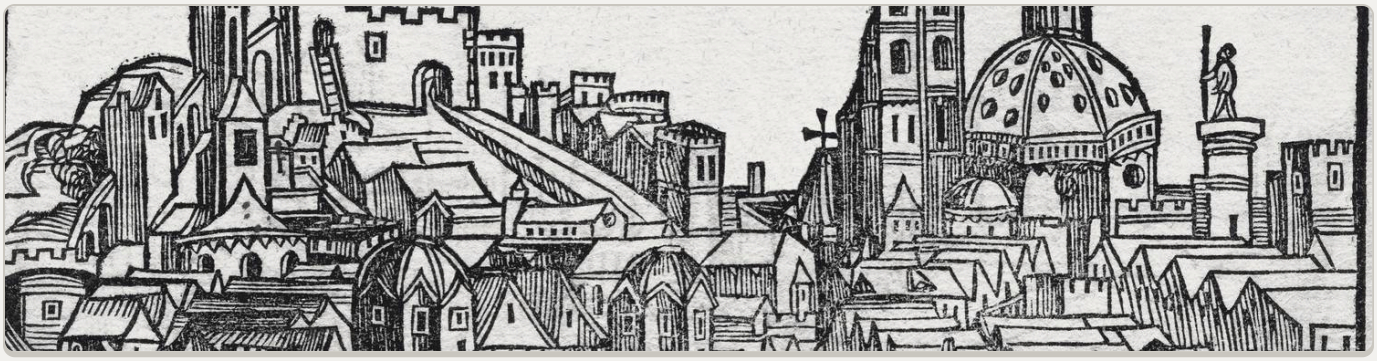

PART TWO

Running the Game

For the Storyteller, from building a town and setting its difficulty to running the villagers and the mob.

CHAPTER 8

Building a Town

Every raid is on a new town. There are three ways to build one, all from the same parts (obstacles, locations, the way out and the lock-up).

Three Ways

- A premade town: a fixed set of locations and obstacles, ready to run. Chapter 9 has three, one each for Easy, Standard and Hard, each with its map.
- Your own town: draw your own town on a map, choose its locations, and build each one by hand with the Building a Location by Hand box below (or roll any part of it). Your map may make some moves take two Turns, and mark some entrances small, even the way out (then a Huge piece can't be carried out of town).
- The random tables: roll the locations, obstacles, loot and villagers. A ceiling on the hardest obstacles keeps a rolled town as hard as its choice of Easy, Standard or Hard promises (Placing the locations, step 4).

Rolling a Town

Build a rolled town in this order:

1. Choose Easy, Standard or Hard (its table is below).
2. Roll the shopping list before the players make their picks, because they hear it first.
3. Roll the furniture and the location it stands at.
4. Place the locations and roll their obstacles (the four steps below).
5. Roll the Lantern Night custom.

Every town also has the way out (Sly or Nimble, or Brawn the loud way) and the lock-up. Both are the same in every town and each is one move from any location; only their Difficulties come from the Easy, Standard or Hard table.

Placing the locations and their obstacles:

1. Locations. Each item on the list gets a location at one of the three places its kind is found (listed under its kind in the shopping table below).
   - Roll a d3, or pick: 1 is the first place listed, 2 the second, 3 the third.
   - One item per place. If the place is taken, roll again or pick another.
   - If a kind has more items than places, each extra one shares a place already taken (roll or pick), two at most: one location, guarding both items.
2. How many obstacles. For each location, roll a d20 on the first row of the table below for one, two or three obstacles, which you get past in order. The two ways in count as a single obstacle, the first.
3. Each obstacle. Roll three dice for each:
   - a d20 on the obstacle table, for what it is and its quiet and loud ways;
   - a d20 on the Difficulty row of the table below;
   - a d10 on the Watched row of the table below.

   For the first obstacle, roll all three dice twice, once for each way in. Reroll only the obstacle table for a way in that is an inside obstacle, then for a second way in that is a second group one or has the first's quiet trait, until each fits. A later obstacle may repeat one of the ways in (two shuttered windows are fine). Roll one more obstacle at the furniture's location. It stands after that location's last obstacle, and its Difficulty is 2 higher than rolled, at most 12.
4. The ceiling. A town may have one Difficulty 12 (two on Hard). Keep the first you roll. Reroll the Difficulty d20 of each later one until it isn't 12. The furniture's obstacle counts by its d20 roll, before the +2, so a rolled 12 counts and a rolled 10 that becomes 12 doesn't.

The Location Rolls

ROLL	EASY	STANDARD	HARD
Obstacles at a location (d20)	1–10: one · 11–18: two · 19–20: three	1–6: one · 7–15: two · 16–20: three	1–4: one · 5–13: two · 14–20: three
Difficulty (d20)	1–3: 6 · 4–13: 8 · 14–19: 10 · 20: 12	1–3: 6 · 4–13: 8 · 14–19: 10 · 20: 12	1–8: 8 · 9–17: 10 · 18–20: 12
Watched (d10)	watched on 1–4	watched on 1–5	watched on 1–6

The Obstacle Table

The quiet way gets past without a fuss; the loud way works too, but Suspicion rises by 1 whatever the result. At a group obstacle, each Entity who wants past rolls for itself. An inside obstacle is never a way in.

D20	OBSTACLE	QUIET WAY	LOUD WAY
1	A heavy cellar trapdoor	Brawn	—
2	A tug-of-war across the lane (group)	Brawn	—
3	A cart blocking the alley	Brawn	Nimble (scramble over the load)
4	A bolted back gate	Brawn (lift it off its hinges)	Charm (shout "Delivery!" until someone opens it)
5	A high garden wall	Nimble	Brawn (through the gate, lock and all)
6	A shuttered window	Nimble	Brawn (force the shutters)
7	The rooftops (group)	Nimble	—
8	A rickety drainpipe	Nimble	—
9	A locked front door	Sly (pick the lock)	Brawn (kick it in)
10	A nosy neighbour at her window	Sly	Wits (a false alarm: "Your cat's on the roof!")
11	A crowded shop floor (group)	Sly	—
12	A muddy yard full of geese	Sly	Nimble (run for it, honking)
13	The shopkeeper behind the counter	Charm	Sly (snatch it from under her nose)
14	A guard dog	Charm (a biscuit and a pat)	Nimble (outrun it, barking)
15	A doorman checking invitations	Charm	Wits (a forged invitation that fools nobody for long)
16	Children in costumes who want a closer look (group)	Charm	—
17	A locked strongbox (inside)	Wits (work out the catch)	Charm (sweet-talk the clerk into opening it)
18	A dark, cluttered back room (inside)	Wits	Sly (rummage through everything)
19	The night watchman on his round	Wits (time his round)	—
20	A maze of festival stalls (group)	Wits	—

BUILDING A LOCATION BY HAND

For your own town, or when you'd rather pick than roll:

- Traits: one or two. With two, usually one is quiet and one loud (the loud way costs Suspicion +1 whatever the result).
- Difficulty: 6, 8, 10 or 12. Aim for the mix the Easy, Standard or Hard table gives, and keep to the ceiling (Placing the locations, step 4).
- Watched or not: Trouble at a watched obstacle gets an Entity caught.
- Group or not: at a group obstacle each Entity who wants past rolls for itself.
- Two ways in: two versions of the first obstacle, with different quiet traits, neither inside and at most one group.

Easy, Standard or Hard

Choose Easy, Standard or Hard. The choice sets the numbers below. On Hard, expect to run for it: about a third of Hard raids end in the final flight, with the loot on your backs.

	EASY	STANDARD	HARD
Shopping list (essentials)	4 (1)	5 (1–2)	5 (2)
Obstacle Difficulties the d20 gives (6 · 8 · 10 · 12)	15 · 50 · 30 · 5%	15 · 50 · 30 · 5%	0 · 40 · 45 · 15%
Suspicion Limit (with five players)	9 (8)	10 (9)	13
The final flight: escape at Lead	5	5	6
The way out: Difficulty	6	8	10
The final flight: mob Difficulty	10	11	11
The lock-up: Difficulty	10	10	10

THE SAME ON EASY, STANDARD AND HARD

- 3 charges per Entity, 12 Turns, overdraw Suspicion +2 (on top).
- Local chase: Lead starts at 1, escape at 4, 6 rounds at most; the mob is 8 plus half the Suspicion when it starts, rounded down, at most 11.
- Final flight: Lead starts at 2.
- A rolled town needs no map, and no way in or way out there is small.

The Shopping List

For each item, roll two d6: the first for its kind, the second for the item. If you roll an item already on the list, roll both dice again.

The essentials are the first items you roll, one on Easy and two on Hard. On Standard, roll any die: odd, one essential; even, two.

Only the kind matters to the rules. It decides where the item can be (Rolling a Town) and which Castle Duty gets its edge at its location.

D6	KIND	THE ITEM (SECOND D6)
1	Food and drink the baker, the butcher, the tavern cellar	1 a wheel of strong cheese · 2 a side of bacon · 3 a cask of red wine ("for the guests") · 4 a sack of flour · 5 a jar of honey · 6 the wedding cake in the shop window
2	Plants and seeds the market garden, the florist, the seed merchant	1 seed potatoes · 2 a pot of nightshade (purely ornamental) · 3 rose bushes for the graveyard · 4 turnip seed for next year's lanterns · 5 a crate of lilies · 6 mushroom spawn for the cellar
3	Books and paper the bookseller, the printer, the schoolhouse	1 this week's newspapers · 2 black-edged writing paper · 3 a cookbook "for the guests" · 4 ink and sealing wax · 5 an almanac with next year's moons · 6 a book of etiquette
4	Silver, china and linen the silversmith, the china shop, the laundry	1 the silver spoons · 2 a tea service · 3 bed linen · 4 a lace tablecloth · 5 a pair of candlesticks · 6 a gravy boat
5	Tools and hardware the smithy, the ironmonger, the carpenter	1 a box of nails · 2 a new lock for the dungeon · 3 hinges that creak properly · 4 a lamp and a can of oil · 5 a coil of rope · 6 a length of good chain
6	Cloth and costumes the draper, the tailor, the hatter	1 a bolt of black velvet · 2 bandages, lots · 3 a top hat · 4 a new cape · 5 knitting wool · 6 boots in a very large size

The Furniture

1. Roll a d6 on the table below for the piece. Decor counts as furniture for every rule.
2. Choose the list item it stands with, or number the list's items from 1 and roll a d6 for it, rolling again on a number with no item. The piece stands at that item's location.
3. It stands behind one extra obstacle, after that location's last (Placing the locations, step 3).

A Bulky piece takes one carrier and a Huge piece two (see Carrying, Chapter 4).

D6	THE PIECE	SIZE
1	A wingback armchair	Bulky
2	A gilt mirror	Bulky
3	A suit of armour	Bulky
4	A stuffed bear	Bulky
5	A grandfather clock	Huge
6	A four-poster bed	Huge

Lantern Night

On the festival night, everyone dresses up as a monster and carries a lantern to keep the real ones away. Every town keeps it its own way, so roll a d6 or pick a custom for each town. Customs are flavour and change no rules.

D6	LOCAL CUSTOM
1	Turnip lanterns in every window.
2	A costume parade through the square at midnight.
3	A masked ball at the mayor's house.
4	Pies left on doorsteps "for the wanderers".
5	A bonfire in the square, and a straw monster burned at dawn.
6	Bells rung every hour to keep the real monsters away. They never work.

The Villagers

Whenever a watched obstacle needs a face, or a Cost needs someone to cause it, roll a d6 for who it is and another d6 for what they're doing. Villagers are flavour. They don't change an obstacle's traits or Difficulty. Roll them as you need them, or a couple before play (each of Chapter 9's towns lists two).

D6	WHO	WHAT THEY'RE DOING
1	The baker's wife	Looking for a lost cat
2	The night watchman	Tipsy from the cider
3	A gang of children	Judging the costume contest
4	The vicar	Carrying a lantern and a pitchfork "for the parade"
5	The mayor, in his best costume	Gossiping, loudly
6	Old Granny Mott, who has seen it all before	Practising the bells

Running the Villagers and the Mob

> FROM THE DESIGNER
> This is not a game where the Storyteller is trying to beat the players. You are creating room for chaos and letting the chaos take the table in various directions that will result in fun outcomes. The players dying is the fate of the dice, not the objective for running the game.

Villagers and witnesses. Everyone in town is in costume and in a good mood, and they see what they expect to see. A watched obstacle means someone is looking; if it isn't already a person, give them a face (one of a premade town's villagers, or a roll). Play the town busy and cheerful, until it isn't.

Choosing Costs. Pick the one that hurts most right now, but never one that costs nothing. A lost Turn bites near dawn, a smaller die before a big roll, "drop an item" when the roller carries loot (it drops its own), Suspicion +1 near the Limit. At the way out there's nothing to pick, because a Cost has no effect there and everyone still leaves, free. Always say what happened (the baker's wife looks twice).

Suspicion. Keep the track where everyone can see it, and let the town's mood follow it as whispers turn to pointing, and pointing to torches.

The mob. In every chase, roll the ground on the chase table each round, and describe it. Once the hunt is on, the mob is like the weather, always there and always closer. When a Weakness comes into play, make it a moment.

The lock-up. Capture is a setback, not the end, unless it takes the last of you. The captive can try to slip free once each Turn after the one it was captured in, and the others can come for it (see Captured, Chapter 6). Keep the captive's player, and anyone else waiting, busy by letting them voice a jailer or a villager.

Pacing. Count the Turns aloud, and warn when three are left. Early on, give each player a job that suits their monster, and steer a new player toward a Difficulty 8 obstacle first. Furniture always costs Suspicion +1 at the end of every Turn from the one it's taken until it leaves town. A carried move takes at least two Turns, so even a piece carried straight to the way out adds at least 1, and usually 2. Warn the party if that would reach the Limit. A raid should fit in an hour or two; roll a town before the session (it takes about half an hour).

CHAPTER 9

Three Towns

Three towns ready to raid, one each for Easy, Standard and Hard, each with a map and everything needed to run it.

READING THE TOWN PAGES

- Each location's rows run in order: its two ways in (picked by the first roll at one of them, then kept for the raid), then each "Then". The furniture's obstacle is already 2 harder. It comes last, marked "for the piece".
- Watched: Trouble there gets you caught. (group): each Entity rolls for itself. The loud way works too, at Suspicion +1 whatever the result. The kind in brackets is what one Castle Duty shops for.
- Try the furniture's obstacle once that location's loot has been taken.
- The way out (Sly or Nimble, or Brawn the loud way) and the lock-up (Sly, or Brawn the loud way; Nimble too to slip free) are always watched.
- On the map, an eye marks a watched location (one with a watched obstacle besides the furniture's): the first time anyone arrives, make a Tell check (Chapter 5). A star marks the furniture. Any move takes one Turn (one more carrying furniture).
- The Lantern Night custom and the villagers are colour; the villagers are the faces at watched obstacles.

An Example of Play

Four players raid Thistlewick (the second town below) as Dracula, the Witch, Frankenstein's Creature and the Werewolf, with their default picks (Butler, Cook, Handyman and Gardener). Suspicion starts at 0; the Limit is 10.

Turn 1. The party splits. The Witch and the Werewolf head for the baker, where the Witch's Cook Duty gives her an edge; Dracula and the Creature take the china shop, where Dracula's Butler Duty gives him the same edge. Both count as watched (the china shop for its back gate, though they'll use the front door), so the Storyteller makes a Tell check at each, a d6 that sets off one arriving Entity's Tell on 4–6. A 2 and a 1 mean no Tells. (At the baker, the Witch's Familiar's Warning would have needed a second 4–6 too.)

Turn 2. At the baker, the party takes the shuttered window. The Werewolf rolls Nimble d12 with the Mask: 10 + 4 = 14 against 8, a Success. The window is now open for both, so the Witch goes on to the shopkeeper (Charm, 8, watched). Her Charm d8 is a d10 here (her Duty's raise). She lets the Monster out for the bigger die and rolls 1 + 4 = 5. That is 3 short, Trouble, and the Monster's 4 beat her trait die's 1, so it showed. One roll, one rise, so Suspicion goes up by the bigger trigger, to 2. The shopkeeper was watching, so the Witch is caught.

She runs. Her Lead starts at 1, and the mob is 8 + half the Suspicion as the chase starts: 9, for the whole chase. Each round, the Storyteller rolls the ground on the chase table. Round 1, a dead end: Wits d12 and the Monster, 12 + 3 = 15, Lead 2. Round 2, another dead end: 2 + 9 = 11, Lead 3, and the Monster showed, so this chase will cost her +2 when it ends. Round 3, the festival parade. Out comes a sprig of rowan, and her Weakness makes her Sly d10 a d8. She spends a charge on her Hedge Spell to raise it back and rolls 5 + 7 = 12: Lead 4, and she escapes. The Monster showed again, but a chase raises Suspicion only once, by its biggest trigger: +2, to 4. (Once the Monster has shown in a chase, letting it out again costs nothing more, which is why she kept it out.) She is back at the baker, her Turn used up.

At the china shop, Dracula picks the front door's lock with the Mask, rolling Sly d6, a d8 with his Butler Duty, 7 + 2 = 9 against 8. The Creature takes the back room with Wits d10 and the Mask: 5 + 2 = 7, one short, a Cost. He has the tea service; the Storyteller picks the Cost. Dropping an item would cost nothing (he carries only what this roll won). Of the rest, Suspicion +1 hurts most, so a teacup smashes. Suspicion 5.

Turn 3. The Witch tries the shopkeeper again, and the Werewolf spends a charge on Good Dog for her, so she rolls the Monster without risking Suspicion. (Any ability but an approach of your own or the Draught can go on a friend's roll in the same place; the helper pays the charge and keeps its action.) 7 + 4 = 11, a Success, and the wedding cake is hers. Dracula and the Creature move on to the watched ironmonger, where the Tell check is a 4, and a d6 between the two arrivals picks the Creature, who stands a head above the crowd. Suspicion 6.

Three Turns gone, nine to go. Both essentials are in hand, but Suspicion is 6 of 10. From here on, every Monster counts.

At the Table

THE ROLL (CHAPTER 3)

Your trait die (one the obstacle lists; in a chase, the ground) + the Mask d6 or the Monster d10, against the Difficulty (6, 8, 10 or 12).

- Success: equal to it or more.
- Cost: 1–2 short. Done, but the Storyteller picks: Suspicion +1, drop an item, lose a Turn, or next die one size smaller.
- Trouble: 3+ short. You don't do it; Suspicion +1; caught if the obstacle is watched (a local chase).
- Critical: a Success on doubles. Two Successes in a chase; anywhere else, a spent charge back.
- Monster shows: it outrolls your trait die. Suspicion +2.

ABILITIES (CHAPTER 3)

One charge each, before the roll, on yours or a friend's in the same place (not in a local chase), for no action. Make your trait die one size bigger; use the ability's trait; roll the Monster without risking Suspicion; or open your own approach with an unlisted trait (a Difficulty 2 lower; your own roll, and only you get past, except at the way out and the lock-up; never in a chase). One raise per roll. In a chase, any ability can be a raise (in a local chase, on your own roll). At zero charges, overdraw: Suspicion +2 on top (once in a local chase), or in the final flight your trait die one size smaller from your next roll after it to its end, on top of any Weakness (once a flight).

TURNS (CHAPTER 4)

12 Turns, then dawn. Start at the way out. Each Turn, each Entity takes one action: roll, move, pick up or wait. One Entity acts at a time, chase and all; if the hunt starts mid-Turn, the rest don't act. A beaten obstacle stays beaten, unless it's a group one (each who wants past rolls; several there in one Turn make one group check, all rolling at once, with one rise). At a location with your Duty's kind of item: trait die one size bigger (own rolls; the one raise; not in a chase). Carrying furniture (Bulky: one carrier; Huge: two): moves take one Turn more, no Mask, Nimble one size smaller. Loot: no limit, handed over or dropped free. The way out (watched): Sly or Nimble, or Brawn the loud way; one roll for all, once a Turn, everyone not captured there.

SUSPICION (CHAPTER 5)

Trouble +1 · the Monster shows +2 · the loud way +1 · a Cost chosen as Suspicion +1 · overdraw +2 on top · a Tell +1 (4–6 on a d6, the first time anyone reaches each watched place, the lock-up and the way out included, but not a captive's arrival, and the way out only once anyone comes back) · furniture, each Turn once taken +1. One roll, one rise, by its biggest trigger; one chase, one rise, when it ends. At the Limit, or at dawn, the hunt is on: the final flight. A roll's result comes first, and Trouble that brings the Limit starts no local chase.

CHASES (CHAPTER 6)

- Local chase: Lead 1, escape at 4, against 8 + half the Suspicion as it starts (rounded down, at most 11); cornered at 0; after round 6, a Lead of 2+ escapes, less is cornered. The Mask allowed (not carrying furniture); abilities on your own roll only; give up at the start of a round, once the ground is read (captured). Escape: back where you were caught, Turn used. Cornered: captured, and the town takes what you carry. At the lock-up (Difficulty 10, watched): slip free once a Turn from the next (Sly or Nimble, Brawn loud; Success only), or be rescued (Sly, Brawn loud; a Success or Cost frees all).
- Final flight: everyone not captured flees together; the Mask is off, Suspicion stops, abilities help anyone, any as a raise. Lead 2, escape at 5 (6 on Hard). Cornered: forked.
- Each round: roll the ground (the chase table); Success Lead +1 (Critical +2), Cost 0, Trouble –1. Several together: more Successes than Trouble, Lead +1 (+2 if ahead by 2 or more); more Trouble, –1 (–2); level, 0.
- Your Weakness: trait die one size smaller to the end of the chase (Always: round 1; Soon: round 3).

HOW THE YEAR WENT (CHAPTER 7)

Grand Year: a Win and a piece of furniture or decor. Win: every essential, at most one extra missing. Partial: at least half the list. Bust: less. Forked: cornered in the flight, or everyone held. Each Entity left behind: one step down.

Once a year, the monsters go shopping.

Every year, on Lantern Night, the whole town dresses up as monsters. Every year, a few real ones walk in with them.

You play Dracula, Frankenstein's Creature, the Mummy, the Werewolf, the Invisible Man, a Ghost, a Witch or Jekyll & Hyde. They share a crumbling castle, and a shopping list to fill before dawn. Hide behind the Mask, or let the Monster out and risk the town's Suspicion. Grab what the castle needs, and maybe a nice armchair. And if it all goes wrong, run, because the mob has pitchforks.
